Officials Named By Paper Plant For Local Area

West Virginia Pulp and Paper Company has set up a sales, technical service and customer service organization for its new multiwall bag plant at Torrance, which will serve all of Western United States. It was announced today by Jason M. Elsas, regional manager of the company's Multiwall Bag Division. Elsas said that the division has made the following appointments for the Torrance District: Frank L. Smith, a graduate of Ohio State University and formerly district sales manager for the Southeastern part of the country, district sales manager. William H. Richmond, previously with the division in California in a sales and service capacity, customer service manager. Robert J. Giegler, formerly with other multiwall bag manufacturers on the West Coast in a sales capacity, technical service representative. As a means of improving service, the division's customer service department has been placed under operations. Under that arrangement, Richmond, the new customer service manager, reports to A. E. Hill, factory manager at Torrance.

Mystery Play Set at College

With a slight shift in the ending, Agatha Christie's mystery play, known in England as "The Nursery Rhyme Murders" and in America as "And Then There Were None" and "Ten Little Indians," will be produced by the El Camino College Thespians Club tomorrow and Saturday nights in the Green Room of the Campus Theatre. The slight shift in the conclusion of the play entails the elimination of every member of the cast except Fred Narracott, a bit part. Howard Barnes of the New York Herald Tribune called the play a "homicidal field day," as the principals are dispatched with a number of varied weapons and devices. Directed by Robert Chaplino, El Camino alumnus and Manhattan Beach drama coach, and designed by Donald Ferguson, "Ten Little Indians" is enacted entirely by members of the Thespians Club, paced by leads Gary Pagett and Natelle Lamkin. The other eight little Indians are Neal Jardine, K. Lype O'Dell, Joseph D'Agosta, Carmelita Mann, Gary Shaffer, Allan Bourheme, James Packard, and Margery Ruth. Scenic designer Ferguson will be seen as Narracott.

Break Ground for New Park

A festive air will prevail this afternoon in Victoria Park as residents and civic leaders celebrate ground-breaking exercises marking the start of major improvements at the new Victoria Park playground. County Supervisor Kenneth Hahn pointed out that the improvement are the first in a series being planned to make the playground one of the finest in Southern California. This afternoon's program marks a major step forward in providing adequate facilities for Victoria Park, Gardena, Torrance and adjacent communities.

KING ON TV
Congressman Cecil R. King is slated for a television appearance Sunday night on Channel 13 at 7 p.m., Oct. 19 as guest on the program entitled "Social Security in Action". William L. Matthews, District Manager of the Social Security Administration, announced today.

ENTER HOSPITAL
Two Torrance youngsters have been admitted as patients at Los Angeles Orthopaedic Hospital. They are Cyrus Hubbard, 15, son of Mrs. Juanita Hubbard of 1113 W. 200th St., and Teresa Terrones, 6, daughter of Mrs. Ogenia Hernandez of 18304 Rosarino Ave.
